

Solange - Where is home?

I always refer to Portugal and to Lisbon as home, and I always say, 'I am going home.' So I think my heart will always belong in Portugal. But I would definitely say part of me, and because I now have a son, I would say definitely part of me belongs here too. It is weird, it is hard to explain. I think half of me still belongs to Portugal, but I do not know. Maybe it is something that in a few years will change. At the moment, I lived for 25 years in Portugal and I have been here for what, 12 years, so I think maybe in a few years' time, when I have been here for as long as I have lived in Portugal, perhaps I will think different. But at the moment, I would say I am half and half.
