

Claire - Barriers and challenges

I think as a city it feels a little bit disjointed in terms of the way the communities are. I am more aware of groups being in different parts of the city and it does not sit comfortably with me. I feel the city itself has got lots of cultural opportunities in terms of things like theatre and music, but again it is very bitty, a lack of homogeneity which it would benefit from. I know it is quite a difficult city. I always think it is to do with the ring roads. I think the ring road sort of cuts things up a lot.