

Logan - Lived religion and belief

There are definitely some things that we do culturally, and some practices that other people do not do. But for the most part I do not find there are many differences. I think my family is generally quite liberal, which means that there is not too much difference. We still interact with the wider environment and do not choose who we interact with based on their faith or any other characteristic.