Denis - Lived religion and belief

When I came to England [my faith] was renewed through a friend and through encounters with the Anglican church, through the evangelical stream of Anglicanism. So I went to Holy Trinity, which is a city centre church here [in Leicester] and my faith went through a renewal. Over the course of your life you change, because of your life experience, so [I've changed] from the more rigid black and white type of faith that I had in my twenties, to a much broader spectrum now, and more inclusive, more open to other people's beliefs and practices. I believe in a personal relationship with God, and all that kind of stuff. I find it very fulfilling.
