

Richard P. - Celebrating Leicester

I think [Leicester] represents the world in a way, in everybody who lives here, and that we all get on very well. Maybe we get on better with our neighbours, but we all get on well with other people from other places if we meet them. And I think it is a place that can teach people just how to live together actually.