

Kavi - Celebrating Leicester

I love people still saying to me 'Alright duck' and all of this kind of stuff. I love that. Leicester, it is just there is something about the people here, there is a ceiling to their excitement. So they will get excited to a ceiling and then they are so humble. I feel like there is a humility to the civic architecture in the city to Leicester. I wish Leicester would shout about itself a bit more. We have got so many really huge figures that come from Leicester – writers and film directors and theatre practitioners – but we are a bit hesitant to shout about ourselves. I think we need to do much, much more.
