

Isobel - Where is home?

Leicester's definitely home, but I still talk about 'going home' when I visit my sister in Scotland. My roots are still quite firmly there. But you can't live in a place for 41 years and not think it's home. When we were coming up to retirement, and my sister had just lost her husband, we toyed with the idea of moving to Scotland, which would be going back for me. But the children were horrified. They said 'you can't!' But there are lots of reasons that it's convenient living in the Midlands. We like to travel, so it's nice having East Midlands and Birmingham airports on the doorstep.

So in the end, we decided moving to Scotland was never going to happen.
